Re: Hallock Genealogy Publication

Thanks for your communication. I had been trying to figure out how to make this information available to people. Hopefully others will provide me with some additional information for my own genealogical research. Here is the genealogy publication, which I promised you. Sorry for the delay. This publication was put together by William A. Hallock and completed and brought forward by my great grandfather, Jacob Imandt. I do not have any problem with people using the information for their personal genealogy purposes and would welcome information about family lines that have continued and specifically about my lines through Jacob N. Imandt and Elsie R. Miller. I would not want anyone using the information for commercial purposes. If anyone does plan to use the information for that purpose, I would request that they write me and request permission.

A couple of pieces of basic additional information regarding our side of the family – the Imandt side (last page) follows. If someone wants more information or to contact me, have them e-mail me and I can provide more specifics. Attached are some additional basics that I have immediately at hand:

A Brief Sketch of The Hallock Ancestry In the United States

THE facts of the landing of Peter Hallock at Southold in 1640, and the location and history of the thirteen first settlers, are given with great care and accuracy by Rev. Ether Whitaker, successor of Rev. John Youngs in the church at Southold, in a sermon preached two hundred years after their landing. The place where they buried their winter's provisions and the cellar of the parsonage built for Mr. Youngs are still (1866) to be seen, as is this early pastor's cherished grave. "Hallock's Neck" and "Beach" are in that vicinity familiar as household words.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hallock Corwin, great-granddaughter of Peter Hallock, who outlived her generation and died at 98, as by her gravestone in Old Aquebogue, was enamoured of her ancestry and delighted to hand over the facts of their early settlement of Long Island to her descendants. She almost weekly visited the old homestead of her great-grandfather Peter, her grandfather William, and her father Peter, Jr., and was so "strictly orthodox" that she frequently walked some miles to hear the more distinct preaching of "Christ and Him crucified." She said: "My great-grandfather told his wife in England that if she would come over with him her son Howell should share with his own son—and so he did; the farm he gave her son Howell lay right alongside his own son's. When the ship came to the shore in Southold the passengers didn't dare to land for fear of the Indians; but Peter Hallock was a strong man, and a bold man, and he stepped ashore first; so the place was called 'Hallock's Neck.'" The will of William Hallock, 1682 (whose signature is written by the copyist Hollyoake) gives evidence of strength of mind, energy, decision, and high-toned piety, indicated in its first golden words committing his soul and body to his Redeemer. It has an approving allusion to the orthodoxy of the standards of the Church of England, which may imply that he and his father, when in England, were connected with that church; but when Rev. Mr. Youngs' church was "gathered anew" at New Haven it was organized simply as a "Church of Christ." Though this William was greatly grieved that his son John should join the Quakers, who in that age were regarded by civil enactments almost as outlaws and sadly persecuted, yet that son ever manifested a conscientious regard to duty, and was the parent of the largest branch of his father William's posterity, a branch equal in intelligence and moral character to any other branch. Probably more than half of John's descendants have been connected with the Methodist-Episcopal and other prominent evangelical churches. It is a curious fact that one of John's worthy descendants inserted in his will a bar to his children's leaving, as his ancestor William did to his children's joining, the Society of Friends.

Deacon Jabez Hallock, who lived to his 103d year and was sixty years a faithful officer of the church, believed that his ancestors were truly pious, and said he well remembered hearing Rev. Jeremiah Hallock (his second cousin) preach, and believed him to be a faithful servant of Christ. To a correspondent, in his later years, whose face he had never seen, he frequently dictated in substance these words: "Tell him I love him and hope he is a devoted man of God and will be faithful unto death." The great body of all the descendants of Peter Hallock of 1640, so far as known to the writer, have borne a character which can hardly be accounted for unless their common ancestry were plain, hard-working farmers, of genuine, decided, unpretending piety and of Puritan descent, few of the name having been elevated to high stations, and almost none immoral or lacking a sufficiency of this world's goods.

Of many unexpected coincidences confirming facts in the ancestry, a singular one corroborates the evidence that Joshua Hallock of Moriches was the son of William whose will was proved 1736. Mr. William Hallock, aged 80, living near Moriches, said his grandfather Zebulon and this Joshua were brothers, and related that their father William of Southold (unhappily) had possession of two very smart colored men, Jack and Brister; that he gave Jack to his son Zebulon, and Brister to his son Joshua in Moriches, with striking anecdotes of Brister's energy and kindness well known in Moriches. This Joshua moved to Orange County, N. Y., near Chester Church, of which his son Jonathan was a founder and an officer. In the records of that church were found Lewis Hallock and two female Hallocks, "colored," doubtless the children of the same Brister.

The marriage of William Hallock of Stony Brook to Sarah Saxton of Huntington was truly romantic. A young man of uncommon strength and beauty, he had been assisting Mr. Saxton in the labors of the farm for some months, when the parents were alarmed at apparent partialities between him and their daughter, which they in all proper ways discouraged. At length, on a bright morning the young people were missing, as were also two horses and saddles. Mr. Saxton followed them with speed across the New York ferries and to friends in New Jersey, and reached them just after the marriage contract had been solemnized. "I see I'm too late," said he. "Now come home and we will all welcome you." The connection was a happy one. They were the parents of twelve children, some of them highly accomplished and moving in the first circles of society, with a numerous and highly esteemed posterity.

Besides Southold, the landing-place of Peter Hallock in 1640, his descendants must ever be interested in the old Hallock homestead near Mattituck, with its "lane" and "swamp lot" so distinctly described in William Hallock's will of 1682; and in the Mattituck graveyard where rest the bodies of Zerubabel Hallock and many of his descendants, and of General H. W. Hallock's great-great- and great-grandfathers Peter, Jr., and Major Peter; as also in the residence of John Hallock first and second in Setauket, who doubtless lie buried in a small Quaker ground adjoining the main graveyard, their names distinguished only by "J. H." on small stones scarcely rising above the surface.

PETER HALLOCK, THE PIONEER

PETER HALLOCK, the ancestor of those of the name in this country, was one of thirteen pilgrim fathers, including Rev. John Youngs, who in 1640 fled from civil and religious oppression in England and landed at New Haven.* There, October 21, 1640, Rev. Mr. Youngs "gathered his church anew" under the auspices of Rev. John Davenport, minister, and Theophilus Eaton, governor, of the New Haven colony, which had just been planted, April 18, 1638, under a branching oak—a virtual theocracy, the Bible their code of laws—ecclesiastical and civil (Trumbull's History of Connecticut). In the same autumn Rev. Mr. Youngs and his church took up their abode in Southold, then comprising the whole northeastern branch of Long Island, landing at the harbor of what is now the village of Southold, on the Peconic Bay, where, as a church or town, they retained their connection with the New Haven Colony till 1662, and with Connecticut till 1674. Rev. Mr. Youngs here continued his ministry thirty-two years and died February 24, 1672, aged 74, as by his tombstone. The twelve men who with members of their families constituted his church were William Wells, Esq., Barnabas Horton, and John Conklin (whose graves are near that of their pastor), Peter Hallock, John Tuthill, Richard Terry, Thomas Mapes, Matthias Corwin, Robert Ackerly, Jacob Co.ey, Isaac Arnold, and John Budd, the first white settlers on that part of the island.

Peter Hallock's great-great-granddaughter, Elizabeth Hallock, born 1732, who died at Old Aquebogue February 12, 1831, aged 98, wife of Silas Corwin, gave to her granddaughters, Mrs. James Hallock, later of Quogue, and Mrs. James T. Hamlin, of Mattituck, Mr. Jonathan G. Horton, and others, living at the time this was written, the following facts, which are confirmed by multiplied records and memorials: That Peter Hallock was the first of the thirteen who ventured to step on shore among the Indians at Southold, that part of the village being still called "Hallock's Neck," and the beach extending from it "Hallock's Beach," of which beach Mr. Horton, who lived in the first frame house erected at Southold by his ancestor, Barnabas Horton, was one of the joint owners; that Peter Hallock purchased from the Indians the tract since called Oyster Ponds, now Orient, the eastern end of this branch of the island (see Thompson's History of Long Island); that he then returned to England for his wife, who, when he married her, was a widow and had a son by her former husband, Mr. Howell; that he promised her that if she accompanied him her son should share with his in his property; that on coming back he found the Indians had resold what is now Orient; that he then purchased about ten miles west of Southold village a farm extending from Long Island Sound on the north to Peconic Bay on the south (three miles), on which he settled in Aquebogue, about two miles west of Mattituck village and creek.

* In 1634, the noble patriots Hampden, Pym, and Oliver Cromwell, on board a fleet of eight vessels on the Thames, and at "Yarmouth," Rev. John Youngs and Joan his wife, "of St. Margaret's, Suffolk," were "forbidden passage" to New England. (History of Puritans, Massachusetts Historical Collection, Volume I, Page 101.) Mr. Youngs was soon after settled at Hingham, in Norfolk County, adjoining Suffolk, one hundred miles northeast of London.

His original homestead on Long Island and that of his wife's son Howell were on adjacent lots, and are occupied (1866) by their respective descendants, Benjamin Laurens Hallock and Sylvester Howell. On the southern part of the purchase are the farms of Colonel Micah W. and Deacon Ezra Hallock, great-grandsons of Zerubabel Hallock, who was a great-grandson of Peter. Numerous other families of Hallocks, most of them prosperous farmers, reside on or near this purchase by Peter Hallock, but of the burial-place of either himself or his only son William or his grandsons Thomas and Peter, who inherited the same premises, they have no knowledge.

WILLIAM HALLOCK, who died September 28, 1684, son of Peter Hallock, made a will, which is preserved in the ancient records both of Suffolk County at Riverhead and of New York City. It is dated "Southold (township), February 10, 1682," and was proved October 21, 1684: "I commit my soul into the hands of Jesus Christ, my gracious Redeemer, and my body to the earth for decent burial, in assured hope of the resurrection at the last day." He gives his property to his wife Margaret, his four sons, Thomas, Peter, William, and John, and his five daughters, Margaret, Martha, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Abigail. "The land where I now dwell at Aquebogue" (near Mattituck) and the lane dividing it he wills to Thomas and Peter, giving Thomas the western half, "except the swamp lot" near his house; and giving Peter the eastern half, with "the swamp lot," and his dwelling. To his son William he gives lands in or near Southold village, and to his son John land in Wading River. The will implies deep sorrow that his son John had married into and had joined the then proscribed Society of Friends, and has the proviso that if any one of his sons "apostatize from the Protestant doctrine and faith," or "willfully and of set purpose contemn and neglect the public worship of God suitable thereto," what is here willed to him shall pass over to "the next lawful heir that shall steadfastly profess and own the said doctrine and faith."

The Documentary History of the State of New York, in a list of those taxed in the township of Southold in 1675, gives but two of the name of Hallock—William taxed £361, and John, doubtless William's eldest son, £82; and in 1683 three of the name of Hallock—William £236, John £80, and Thomas £81; Richard Howell, who lived on the lot adjoining the original homestead of Peter Hallock, being taxed in 1675 £77; in 1683 £98. In the same History a list of the total inhabitants of Southold Township in 1698, including men, women, and children, in all 881, gives 254 persons bearing the names of twelve of the above original thirteen settlers. Among these are 23 of the name Hallock: Margaret Hallock, widow; and in three distinct groups the families of three of William's sons—1, Thomas Hallock, with Hope, Thomas, Kingsland, Ichabod, Zerubabel born in 1696, Anna, Patience, and Richard. 2, Peter Hallock, with Eliza, Bethiah, Abigail, Peter Jr., William, and Noah born in 1696. 3, William Hallock, with Mary, William Jr., Prudence, Zebulon, and Mary. John, William's other son, having removed to Brookhaven, all the Hallock's in South-old Township in 1698 were the above twenty-three, the widow and descendants of William Hallock who died in 1684. In the records of several of the earlier wills the signature is Halliok, and it has been conjectured that the name was originally identified with Holyoke.

The following facts as to the family and earlier descendants of each of these four sons of William Hallock have been chiefly obtained from the reliable source of wills and deeds preserved in certified records. It is regretted that this brief sketch could not include the female, perhaps the larger half, of the Hallock ancestry. William Hallock who died in 1784 had five daughters. His son John and grandson John had ten daughters, who married into the families of Powell, Willets, Willis, Underhill, and Hunt. Peter, born in 1694, had nine daughters. Edward, born in 1717, had nine, who all had families.

I. THOMAS HALLOCK'S DESCENDANTS

No will or deed of Thomas Hallock, grandson of Peter of 1640, has been found, nor any record of his sons Kingsland and Richard, named as above in the census of 1698. Ichabod, son of Thomas, wills, 1759, to his son Thomas, who probably was the father of Thomas of New Providence, N. J., who died in 1822, aged about 60, and whose son, Smith Hallock, was father of Jeremiah R. Hallock, of Newark, N. J.

ZERUBABEL HALLOCK, son of Thomas, who has a large posterity near the original homestead, died April 8, 1761, aged 65, and his wife Esther in 1773, aged 78, as by their gravestones in Mattituck; He wills, 1761, lands to sons Zerubabel 2d, James, and Joseph; £400 to Benjamin, student, who died in 1765, aged 24; £100 to grandson William, then aged 11, to be paid him at 21; and £10 to grandson Zechariah. Zerubabel's sons John, aged 20, and William, aged 24, were drowned 1749, William's son William being born 1750, after his father's death and having no brother. These facts were confirmed by Mrs. Esther Hallock Reeve, then 85, daughter of Zechariah.

I. ZERUBABEL 2D died March 31, 1800, aged 78, had seven sons: Zerubabel 3d, Richard, Zechariah, John, Daniel, Caleb, Ezra. Zerubabel 3d died in 1804, aged 59, had three sons: Zerubabel died in 1803, aged 34; Jacob, father of Dr. Lewis of New York and Horace of Detroit; and Rupert, father of David B., and Zerubabel of Baltimore. Richard had two sons: Richard, father of Nathan Tuthill; Benjamin, father of Benjamin Laurens, Jared, Jacob A., Samuel, and Charles R. Zechariah died in 1820, aged 71, had three sons: Zechariah 2d, born 1776, father of Herman and Zechariah 3d; John, father of Franklin, Isaiah, Wells, and Caleb; Bethel, born 1790, father of Bethuel E., Edwin, Joel, and John K. Deacon John, Ridgebury in Minisink, now Waywayanda, Orange County, N. Y., died 1842, aged nearly 90; his son, Hon. John, was judge and member of Congress, father of Dr. DeWitt Clinton, Minisink. Daniel had four sons: Daniel, Wayne County, N. Y., father of Livingston; Corydon, and Lewis; Dr. Elisha; Colonel Micah W., father of Dr. David H., Scuthampton, Daniel B. and Moses S. of Brooklyn, Elijah and Elisha; Deacon Ezra, father of George W., Ezra Y. of Dallas, Polk County, Ore., and Rev. Joseph N. Caleb, Bridgewater, Oneida County, N. Y., died 1830, had two sons: Caleb, Jr., and Phineas, father of Norman and Daniel. Caleb, Jr., aged 80, had five sons: Zadok H., John, and DeWitt, all at Almont, Lapeer County, Mich.; Thomas R. at Strawberry Point, Clayton County, Ia., father of Herbert T. and three sons who died in the army; and James C., who died in Orleans County, N. Y., February, 1859, aged 46, father of Washington Irving and of Dayton S. of Almont, Mich. Ezra, father of William, of James port, L. I.

2. JAMES, died at Mattituck, 1775, aged 44, wills to five sons: James, Jeremiah, Benjamin, William, Thomas. James, Esq., died March 5, 1852, aged 90, had three sons: Benjamin Goldsmith; Charles, merchant in New York, father of James; and George, of Fowler, O. Deacon Jeremiah, Cayuga, N. Y., died June 10, 1854, aged 83; had two sons: William J., and George B., father of William R. and George F. Benjamin died 1794, aged 21. William settled at Washtenau, Mich., father of Franklin of Cazenovia, Nelson and James. Thomas, Smithtown Branch, born July 11, 1768, died January 7, 1854, father of James.

3. JOSEPH, Hog Neck, opposite Southold, had four sons: Benjamin, father of Benjamin Hubbard, who had two sons, Joseph A., Newark, and Edward H., Randall's Island; William, State of New York; Joseph, father of George; and Isaac, father of Benjamin S., Brooklyn.

4. WILLIAM, son of Zerubabel 1st, drowned 1749, aged 24, had one son, William, born after his father's death. This William, born 1750, grandson of Zerubabel, died at Riverhead September, 1824, aged 74, buried in Upper Aqueduct, had seven sons: William, died January, 1824, aged 50, father of James of Greenpoint, Nicholas of Upper Aqueduct, Caleb; David, father of Jesse at Hermitage; Peter, father of Harvey, and Benjamin of New York; James of New York died in 1832, father of James H., teacher, Sanford, and John; Sylvanus of New York, born July 21, 1784, had seven sons: Aaron, Edward, Sylvanus of Chicago, Samuel M., John H., Lieutenant Alfred, North Orange, N. J., and David F.; Noah of Riverhead, father of Terry, Daniel, George W., John, Charles; Gordon died young.

II. PETER HALLOCK'S DESCENDANTS

No will or deed of Peter Hallock, grandson of Peter of 1640, has been found. Sons by a record of his grandson William, born 1730, Peter, Jr., William who died young at sea, and Noah, born 1696.

I. PETER HALLOCK, JR., homestead near Mattituck, wills, 1753, to sons Major Peter and William and nine daughters, one of them Mrs. Elizabeth H. Corwin, mentioned. He died August, 1756, aged 62; his second wife, Mary, died 1761, aged 67, and their youngest daughter, Azubah, 1754, aged 9, as by their gravestones in Mattituck.

1. MAJOR PETER HALLOCK, on the old homestead, married a daughter of Joseph Mapes September, 1750, died May 13, 1791, as by his gravestone in Mattituck, had five sons: Peter and James, who had no children, Joseph, Frederick and Deacon Jabez. Joseph fell as commander of an armed vessel in the war of the Revolution by the last shot before the attacking force surrendered. Frederick, born at the old homestead April 11, 1759, died at Quogue June 22, 1853, aged 94, had five sons: James, Frederick 2d, Peter, Harvey, and Benjamin F. James, born at the old homestead January 15, 1787, settled at Quogue, father of James S. Y., William S. O., and Harvey F. C.; Frederick 2d, father of Captain Frederick M. of Franklinville, Nathan B. of Flanders, Harvey of Bridgehampton, John D. of Quogue, and Captain Franklin B., who fell in the United States Army, aged 33; Peter died May 11, 1859, aged 60, father of Peter R., Atlanticville; Harvey died at 23; and Benjamin Franklin. Deacon Jabez (who wrote his name Halleck), born at the old homestead March 13, 1761, moved in 1799 to Westernville, Oneida County, N. Y., died September 17, 1863, in his 103d year, had sons Joseph, Jabez, and Barnabas Wines, who died August 31, 1859, aged 52, the two last having no surviving son. Joseph, Esq., was a lieutenant in the war of 1812, a magistrate for thirty years, married a daughter of Henry Wager, Esq., and died June 22, 1857, aged 72. He was the father of Henry Wager Halleck, LL.D., born January 16, 1814, "General-in-Chief of the Whole Land Forces of the United States" (1863), whose military and civil services at West Point, in the Mexican War, in drafting the Constitution of California, and in our great civil struggle, as well as the valuable military and legal works he has issued, are before the public. He married a granddaughter of the patriot, Alexander Hamilton. His brother, Andrew J., born September 5, 1830, was one of his staff. Joseph, Esq., had also sons Jabez, who died in California in 1849, aged 28; Joseph, Minneapolis, Minn.; and William Wines and Peter, Westernville,

2. WILLIAM, brother of Major Peter and father of Mary Hallock Bernard of Brooklyn, died at Old Aquebogue, 1794, aged 53, had three sons: William, Benjamin, and Samuel. William died August 16, 1806, aged 36. Benjamin settled at Middle Island, had sons Benjamin B. of New York; Daniel B. and Thomas J. of Patchogue; John of Mastic; Samuel of Middle Island; Strafford C. of Yaphank; Isaac D. of Bellport. Samuel, whose son William of Mattituck was father of Lieutenant Charles C. of Brooklyn, and John W. of Riverhead.

II. NOAH HALLOCK, born 1696, settled at Blue Point, in Rocky Point, near Old Man's, now Mount Sinai, opposite New Haven, died 1773, aged 77, as by his gravestone, had three sons: Noah, William, Josiah.

1. NOAH, born 1728, had five sons: Rev. Noah Hendrickson, Peter, Thomas, and Deacon Philip. Rev. Noah, pastor at Mount Sinai, died in 1818, aged 60, father of Daniel Miner, Esq. Hendrickson had sons Hendrick, father of Hendrickson, and Herman, who died October 28, 1863. Peter died young. Thomas of Smithtown had two sons: Thomas, father of Captain Thomas G., Rev. Luther C., Ephraim of Setauket, and Henry H., and Noah, who had five sons: Arden M. of Greenpoint; Peter, father of Elvin B., George C., and Edgar M.; Daniel Miner, father of Alanson and Leonard M.; Nathaniel; Conkling. Deacon Philip, father of Philip and James.

2. WILLIAM* died in Goshen, Mass., October 21, 1815, aged 85, had two sons: Jeremiah and Moses. Rev. Jeremiah, forty years pastor in Canton, Conn., died 1826, aged 68, had two sons: Hon. Jeremiah Humphrey, judge in Ohio, and William Homan, father of Jeremiah S. and William. Rev. Moses, forty-five years pastor in Plainfield, Mass., died 1837, aged 77, had four sons: Rev. William A., forty years Secretary American Tract Society, born June 2, 1794; Leavitt, father of Rev. William A. and Leavitt H.; Gerard, Esq., New York, father of William Homes and Charles; and Homan, father of Moses, Homan B., Gerard J., Samuel, and William A.

3. JOSIAH, born 1732, had two sons: Josiah, father of George, James, and Amos; and Jonathan, father of Jesse and Samuel, father of Sylvester.

III. WILLIAM HALLOCK'S DESCENDANTS

The will of William Hallock, Southold (village), grandson of Peter of 1640, made 1728, proved 1736, bequeaths lands received from his father, William, to two sons, Zebulon and Peter, but he evidently had a third son, Joshua, who settled on "Hallock's Neck," later "Old Neck," in Moriches.

* Evidence of the religious character of most of the earlier ancestry appears in their Puritan descent and in the will of William, who died in 1684. Deacon Jabez, when 100 years old, read "one book, his large-print Bible," and traced his conversion to the influence of a pious ancestry. Of Noah, born in 1696, his son William says: "He seemed to have great understanding of the Scriptures, and talked much of the latter-day glory. He and his wife were strict observers of the Sabbath. When there was no preaching, he often held social worship in his own house. He has left this one word, given me after I had mounted my horse to spend the day with friends, and which I should be glad to have transmitted to the latest generation: 'My son, remember there is a long eternity!'" This William (father of Jeremiah and Moses) moved from Rocky Point to "Fire-Place" (Southaven) in Brookhaven, half a mile south of "Carman's," at the "old dock," near the entrance of the river into the Great South Bay of the island. Here, investing most of his property in a coasting-vessel, he went out in her, when she was run into by the British ship "Snow" and sunk, his life being saved by springing aboard the ship. This disaster occasioned his removal to Goshen, Mass. His married daughters were Mrs. Alpheus Parse, Mrs. Dan Case, Mrs. Stephen Hosford, Mrs. Rev. Joel Chapin, Mrs. Daniel Perkins, and Mrs. Rev. Josiah Hayden, who died at Haydenville, Mass., September 11, 1862, aged 93, mother of Hon. Joel Hayden.

William Hallock, who lived near Moriches with his father Jonathan, son of Zebulon, as below, stated that his father always spoke of David, son of Joshua, as his first cousin, and of their fathers, Zebulon and Joshua, as brothers and sons of William of Southold, and that Peter had no children. No record is found of William, Jr., mentioned in the census of 1698.

1. ZEBULON HALLOCK lived near Southold village and had seven sons: John, Zebulon 2d, Israel, Jonathan, three of whom, William, Nathan, and Samuel, had no children, Jonathan being the youngest of the seven. (Nathan died 1756, just after his marriage. In 1763 Mary Hallock wills to son Samuel.)

IV. JOHN HALLOCK'S DESCENDANTS

The Westbury Monthly Meeting of Friends record the death of John Hallock, grandson of Peter of 1640, and that of his wife Abigail at Setauket in Brookhaven in 1737, "both very ancient and in unity with Friends." Deeds at Riverhead name four of the sons: John 2d, Peter, Benjamin, and William, who all settled near him in Setauket, as did also his son Jonathan, whose children and William's are known to have been cousins. A deed in 1715 from William to his son William was held by their descendant Edmund P. Hallock. The neat dwelling of John Hallock 1st, covered with cedar, and that of John Hallock 2d, still remain (1864) in Setauket, where they were a committee on a Friends' Monthly Meeting, held for more than a century, but now discontinued.

I. JOHN HALLOCK SECOND, Friends' preacher, by his will, 1765, aged nearly 86, had three sons: John 3d, Edward, and Samuel.
