TOPOGRAPHICAL BUREAU

February 10, 1931.

Hon. George U. Harvey,
President of the Borough of Queens.

Dear Sir:

I beg to submit a report containing a description of private and family cemeteries in the Borough of Queens.

The trend of progress in the Borough of Queens has in recent years almost completely obliterated the rural aspect of many sections of the Borough. Where sparsely settled villages were, populated districts now stand, containing thousands of homes. Where once one viewed only farm land, now developments appear ranging from streets of ordinary width to majestic boulevards. This unprecedented progress has completely erased from the topography of the Borough many private cemeteries, some of which date back to the time of the first settlers on Long Island.

In the course of the final mapping of the Borough of Queens, surveying parties of the Topographical Bureau, office of the Borough President, determined the location of many private cemeteries. Besides being of historical interest, the records contained in the epitaphs on the headstones in these cemeteries are of considerable genealogical value, and may be of service to those seeking to prove their descent. Questions of land ownership might be clarified by the information obtained from these cemetery records.

Believing that a permanent detailed record of each private cemetery would be of historical and genealogical, and even legal, interest to posterity, I have had the inscriptions contained on the headstones, together with the location of the graves, copied and compiled into book form.

This book contains an index map of the private cemeteries, a detailed sketch of each, and a list of the inscriptions that appear on the headstones.

A legend is shown on the index map containing the name of each cemetery; opposite the name is a number, which number corresponds to the number on the map indicating the approximate location of the cemetery.

The detailed sketch of each cemetery shows the exact location of each grave; a number is given to each grave on this sketch.

Respectfully,

CHARLES U. POWELL,
Engineer in Charge.

EDITOR'S PREFACE

The Queens Borough Public Library rejoices in the possession of records of some of these graveyards made before the Topographical Bureau started its file. The library records are, in several places, fuller than those of the Topographical Bureau. The two files have been combined since it is the aim of the editor to present these records in as full a form as possible.

It is a cause for rejoicing that such men as Mr. Powell and his associates are alive to the necessity of preserving for the use of future generations such information as is found here. It has been a pleasure and a privilege to work on this book and to cooperate with the Topographical Bureau in its compilation.

The editor wishes to acknowledge indebtedness to the work of the late William F. Wyckoff, Henry Onderdonk, Jr., and William S. Pelletreau. Thanks are also due to Mrs. Josephine C. Frost of Brooklyn, Mr. Arthur White of Newtown, Mr. R. G. Debevoise of Woodhaven and Mr. W. A. D. Eardley of Brooklyn.

She was the last member of her father's family, her eldest brother, Capt. John B. Riker, died at Hamburg November 3rd, 1797, aged 25 years; her second brother, Dr. Nathaniel F. Riker, died at sea Aug. 24th, 1802, aged 27. Both possessed excellent qualities and her youngest brother, who reposes at her side, was a merchant of N. York. The record of his death speaks the sad void of the deeply smitten heart that loved as only a sister can love. For a long time she was the solace of her widowed mother; her filial affection shone with a pure and undying light over her onward path 'till at the portal of Heaven she was conveyed to the Saviour of her soul. Sweet spirit, Farewell.

INDIAN CEMETERY—LITTLE NECK

COPY OF A LETTER TO GEORGE G. DORN RE. THE INDIAN CEMETERY ON BROADWAY, EAST OF CORNELL'S LANE, LITTLE NECK

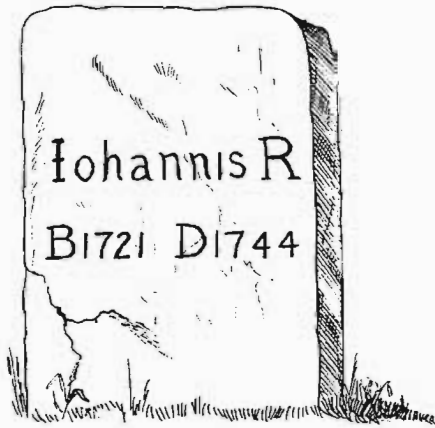

Little Neck, Long Island, N. Y.
Dec. 2, 1919.

My Friend:

In 1636 on account of the troubled conditions of New England the ancestors of James and Charles Wancus, Watteree, came to what they called Little Neck, after their old home at Stratford, Conn., and named the next village Great Neck, Cow Neck, Mad-man's Neck, Wigwam Pond, etc. The land grants spread around them like nets. In 1642 Robert Hicks acquired a large tract about Hempstead and Flushing. Stephen purchased several thousand acres. Thomas Hicks in 1666 obtained from Governor Nichols a patent of 4000 acres, including Great Neck and Little Neck. As the Hicks and Quakers waxed strong the glory of the family departed. The family graves were desecrated by the whites at the Point (now Douglas Manor, the burying ground of the Rockaway and Matinecock Indians), they had been forced from their burying ground overlooking the bay (now the golf ground on the old Thorne property at Great Neck), and the whites were closing in upon this little spot, and so according to the Records at Queens County Clerk's office, we read that Silvia Hicks or Hubbs purchased these nine acres which had always been her home, and paid for them in the usual way of civilization. So that is how along the roadside where the iron shoes of the pale face horses instead of the soft moccasin tread, sleep the dead of the family and several whites too poor to own a grave, for lo these many years.

(Signed) JAMES E. WATERS,
Chief Wild Pigeon.

72, 76, 77, 78, 79, and names were supplied by the grave digger, Peter Davis, Aqueduct, L. I.

Following information supplied by the last surviving male member of his family, Harry L.
Van Wicklen:

The South Side Burial Ground was donated by the Van Wicklens about 1681, at which time they settled in Aqueduct.

Each farmer was allotted a piece of ground at that time; among them the RYDERS, DUR-LANDS, FREDERICKS, STOOHOFFS and VAN WICKLENS.

Of later years the plots in some cases have been buried over and over again; the old settlers having passed away or have taken no interest in the ground. The permission for burving was given by Henry Lott Van Wicklen at this time,
and the people still hold to this permission,
burials having been made as late as this Spring past (1919).

No. 1. MARBLE (broken)

In Memory of THOMAS PULLIS, Sen., who died
May 15th, 1851; aged 76 years, 5 months, 15 days.

No. 2. MARBLE (broken)

Footstone bearing letters J. H. G.

No. 3. MARBLE (broken; part remains)

—ETH H. —IN; died June 11th, 1846; aged
1 years and 10 months.

Rough stone wall surrounds cemetery; overgrown with weeds; refuse dump made of one corner;
headstones torn out, 3 remaining laying flat,
and therefore not located.

The Willet Farm was in the south part of Flushing where Cedar Grove Cemetery now lies and the Willet graveyard was near the northern line of the farm on Northern Boulevard.

In 1766 Thomas Willet sold the farm to Lieutenant Governor Cadwalader Colden reserving the right to bury his family in the graveyard. In Colden's deed there is a clause giving him the right to be buried in this ground. In 1890 William S. Pelletreau visited this graveyard and copied such of the stones as were then legible and incorporated the information in a note to his "Abstracts of Wills" published by the New York Historical Society.

The Colden estate was confiscated and sold after the Revolution and later became the Cedar Grove Cemetery. Colden's house was the office of the cemetery, and the graveyard was left undisturbed. In late years the house was torn down and a fireproof structure took its place. The cemetery was graded over and the graveyard has entirely vanished. Pelletreau's is the only record we have of this old family. Here the mortal remains of Governor Colden are supposed to rest.

WHITING—Here lies interred the body of Sarah, the wife of Robert Whiting and daughter of Charles and Eleanor Willet who departed this life the 7th of July 1797 aged 38 years.

WILLETT—S. Willett; 1722; age 62.

WILLETT—G. Willett; 1722.

WILLETT—. . . Willett; 1753.

WILLETT—Elizabeth Willett; wife of John Willett, Jr.; aged 67 years; deceased October 19, 1775.

WILLETT—Sarah Willett; daughter of John Willett.
